

Social Connection and Health

Key Messages

43% of residents of BC's lower mainland report low community belonging

Social connection is a strong indicator of general and mental health

Healthy behaviours are more likely to be reported by those with greater social connection

People with lower levels of social connection report higher levels of stress

Neighbourhoods with higher resident-rated built environment features report greater social connection

Length of time you live in a neighbourhood is strongly related to community belonging